ADEQ Officials Announce E-mail Subscription Service for Public to Receive Updates on Wildfires in Arizona

PHOENIX (May 25, 2012) – Arizona Department of Environmental Quality officials announced today that they are expanding wildfire support services in the state by offering an e-mail subscription service for those interested in receiving significant updates on wildfires.

To sign up for the subscription service, go to the following link: <https://public.govdelivery.com/accounts/AZDEQ/subscriber/new> and sign up for the “Wildfire Air Quality Monitoring Support” topic. The new service will allow subscribers to receive information about specific wildfires with regular updates.

ADEQ offers wildfire support at <http://www.azdeq.gov/function/programs/wildfire.html>, where information is available about air quality and health issues from wildfire smoke and how to remediate private wells and septic systems after such fires.

“This is a significant expansion of the services we offer the public and can be conveniently used in a crisis situation,” said ADEQ Director Henry Darwin.

ADEQ also offers helpful information during wildfire situations through its social network. Follow ADEQ on Twitter at <http://twitter.com/ArizonaDEQ> and “Like” ADEQ on Facebook at <http://www.facebook.com/azdeq> for regular updates.
